MAN DIES AFTER BEING DRAGGED ALONG BY A CAR

POLICE have appealed for information after a man from Finsbury Park died after being dragged along by a car.

Oliver Farrell, 27, died in hospital last Wednesday following the incident, which took place in Essex Road, Islington, in the early hours of Sunday, November 17.

His next of kin are aware.

A post-mortem took place on Thursday at Poplar Mortuary, in east London, and gave the cause of death as head injuries.

Mr Farrell, who was known to friends as Oli, grew up near Duffield, in Derbyshire, and was working as a senior consultant in immigration and VAT tax for Jam Recruitment.

The Sheffield Hallam University business studies graduate had been based at the recruitment consultancy's central London office since January 2010.

Police officers believe that Mr Farrell was leaning through the passenger-side front window of a black Vauxhall Zafira, close to the junction with Ockendon Road, around 1.55am having a conversation with the driver when the car suddenly drove away northbound.

He was dragged along for about 100 yards before losing his grip and falling to the ground, suffering a serious head injury in the process.

Mr Farrell was treated at the scene by the London Ambulance Service and taken to a hospital in east London, where he died last week from his injuries.

Police said that a 57-year-old man had been arrested in connection with the incident after going to a north London police station. He has been bailed until January 2014.

Officers from the North-West London Road Death Investigation Unit are carrying out inquiries into the incident and anyone with information is asked to call 020 8842 1817 or Crimestoppers, anonymously, on 0800 555 111.

Digging for fitness: People at a green gym run by The Conservation Volunteers

Join green revolution at new gym

A NEW outdoor gym where people get fit by digging and planting trees will open in Haringey in the new year.

The green gym, which is being funded by a £60,000 grant from the People's Health Trust, is due to open in Bruce Grove in January.

The money forms part of £500,000 awarded to charity The Conservation Volunteers to set up community groups in nine areas across the UK.

TCV helps communities to reclaim local green spaces. Through a network of 2,000 community groups, volunteers take part in a wide range of green activities including planting trees and hedgerows, clearing footpaths and building steps.

The aim is to unite the community while putting them in control of their own outdoor spaces.

TCV already runs a number of projects across Haringey, including green gym sessions in Harmony Gardens, Tottenham, every Friday.

Chris Speirs, TCV London health manager said: "Instead of running on a treadmill alone, you can get fit by digging and planting trees while also giving something back to the community."

The £60,000 grant from the PHT will be used to develop the new green gym, recruit a Haringey green gym project officer for 18 months, find new green spaces and buy materials.

The PHT chief executive John Hume said: "The Conservation Volunteers do fantastic work, giving local people the chance to get outdoors and make new connections within the community while engaging with their environment."

"We couldn't be happier to fund these projects and we are really looking forward to seeing how people in Haringey can make where they live a better place."

To take part in the The Conservation Volunteers' community projects in Haringey, call 020 8348 6005 or email m.bury@tcv.org.uk

Policeman ran from scene with an object

AN eyewitness at the scene of the shooting of Mark Duggan told the inquest into his death that she saw a police officer pick something up close to the minicab in which the dead man had been travelling.

And she said that the officer then ran towards Tottenham Hale station with the object and "had put something over to cover it". The witness, who was 16 at the time, was giving evidence via videolink at the Royal Courts of Justice.

Mr Duggan, 29, was shot dead by a police marksman when the vehicle in which he was a passenger was stopped by officers in Ferry Lane on August 4, 2011. Police believe that he had been armed.

Last week the inquest heard from forensics experts, who debated how a gun which was found 20metres from Mr Duggan's body could have ended up there.

The inquest, which continues today after not sitting yesterday as two jurors were unavailable, heard that the teenager was on the other side of the road to the shooting.

Pupils get gaming tips from William

STUDENTS got some tips from the Duke of Cambridge last week when they took part in a games design workshop.

The kids from Highgate Wood School, in Montenorote Road, Hornsey, were designing their own games at a workshop at the BAFTA headquarters, in Piccadilly, central London, on Wednesday when Prince William dropped in. He talked to the children – and even suggested a few ideas of his own.

Pupil Shania Barry, 11, described it as "a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity".

Chase Farm A&E's impending fate led council to dismiss downgrade appeal

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

ENFIELD Council did not appeal against the High Court decision to throw out its application for a judicial review of the downgrade of Chase Farm Hospital because of the likelihood that the case would not be heard before the December 9 deadline – when the accident and emergency department is due to shut.

A High Court judge rejected the council's legal challenge to the decision to give the go-ahead to the Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Clinical Strategy two weeks ago. Maternity services at the hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, closed last week and the A&E and inpatient paediatric unit will shut in two weeks' time.

The council's argument was that promised improvements in primary care, which were expected to be in place before A&E closed, have not been fulfilled.

In a written answer to a question by Alev Cazimoglu, chairwoman of Enfield Council's health and wellbeing scrutiny panel, for tonight's council meeting, council leader Doug Taylor said the only way the authority would have been able to keep A&E open was by seeking "injunctive relief". That would involve paying the Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust £1.1milion and North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, £1.85m per month in damages.

Mr Taylor added there was a risk the Court of Appeal would not grant an injunction to halt the closure of A&E anyway because a judge would be likely to refuse relief because of safety risks in keeping the department open.

Another major stumbling block was the fact that the clinical commissioning groups had argued that they would have had to implement an "emergency closure" of Chase Farm's A&E because of safety concerns, had the council's legal challenge been successful.

According to Mr Taylor, the council's lawyers concluded: "The combination of circumstances outlined means the practical realities have now overtaken the legal principles."

However, the trust denied that there were safety concerns at Chase Farm.

"We have successfully and safely moved maternity and neo-natal services and we are expecting the same for A&E and paediatrics," said a spokeswoman.

YouTube song urges staff to get the flu jab

STAFF and patients at Chase Farm Hospital have taken to YouTube to inject a little Christmas spirit into their efforts to boost take-up of the flu vaccine.

As part of a campaign to promote the benefits of the vaccination, the trust has released an adaptation of Mariah Carey's seasonal classic All I Want For Christmas Is You.

Singer Jennifer Redston, from Finchley, teamed up with medical and administrative staff and patients to record I Don't Want A Christmas With Flu.

All hospital trusts in England are aiming to vaccinate at least 75 per cent of their staff against flu this winter.

The YouTube video, which includes the lyrics, "I don't want the flu this Christmas. There is just one jab I need. It will help combat the presence of this seasonal disease", has attracted more than 6,000 hits so far on the video-sharing website.

A spokeswoman for the Barnet and Chase Farm trust said: "It's an important campaign because flu can be passed on to others even by those who show no symptoms themselves. It can affect even seemingly healthy people who rarely get ill. Sickness absence due to flu also has an adverse impact on staffing levels."

Miss Redston said: "It's been great fun and a real honour to work with the trust on a campaign such as this, and I hope it has the impact they require."

THE final touches are being applied to Barnet Hospital, which is bracing itself for additional patients coming from Enfield following the downgrade of Chase Farm Hospital.

The hospital, in Wellhouse Lane, High Barnet, has undergone a transformation after being allocated £23million to expand and improve maternity and accident and emergency services, as well as provide 200 extra parking spaces.

The funding came as part of the Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Clinical Strategy, which will see both Barnet Hospital and North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, take on a significant number of additional patients after the A&E department at Chase Farm Hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, shuts on December 9.

Its maternity unit was closed last Wednesday.

Barnet has the capacity to deliver 5,525 babies a year, up from 3,281 births during 2012/13.

The hospital has a new, midwife-led unit, with five birthing rooms, including three large pools, where the first babies were delivered last week.

It also has a new delivery suite, which has been expanded from six to 13 beds, and has 98 hours of consultant cover a week.

The hospital's antenatal ward has been expanded from 32 to 48 beds, while its neonatal unit, where babies born early or with complications are kept under observation, now has 30 cots, up from 20 before the changes.

Katie Tew, assistant manager for the implementation of the clinical strategy for women and children, who was born at Chase Farm, said the transition had gone smoothly.

"It has gone really well at this site and all of the staff have been on board with the transition, which has been great," she said.

"Even if, like me, you have an attachment to Chase Farm, it has been really exciting to see this project come to completion."

Work at Barnet's A&E unit, where a new CT scanner – which uses X-rays and a computer to create detailed images of the inside of the body – is being installed, is expected to be completed next week.

Lorraine Chowdry, matron of emergency medicine, said: "It has been challenging, particularly because the works have been ongoing while we kept the service running. But the staff have been excellent and the number of compliments we receive from patients has increased."

Pregnant women can continue receiving services at the Chase Farm site, including midwife-led antenatal care and classes as well as postnatal care.

New maternity units welcome first arrivals

THE first babies have been born at the new-look maternity units serving the residents of Enfield, as well as Barnet and Haringey.

North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, which includes a 17-bed delivery suite and a midwife-led birth centre, with eight birth rooms and six birthing pools, witnessed its first new arrival on Thursday.

Oliver was born weighing 6lb and 12oz after his mother Dita, from Enfield, was in labour for four hours.

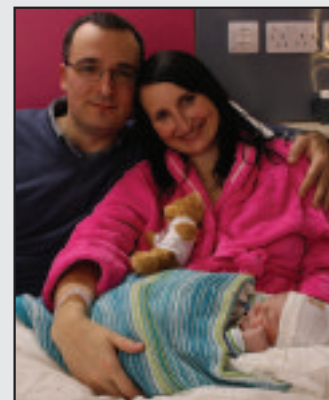

He is the couple's third child and his dad Tomas said: "We had the best health insurance around and went to the best hospital in Boston in America to have our first child. This experience at the North Mid was comprehensively better."

"We would recommend anyone to come here and have their baby. This is the best hospital around and we are overwhelmed by what we have experienced in this new maternity unit. It has been perfect."

An 8lb 10z boy was born at the expanded maternity unit of Barnet Hospital, in Wellhouse Lane, High Barnet, at 12 minutes past midnight last Wednesday.

Parents Talia and Idan Shani, from Borehamwood, said: "The staff and facilities have been fantastic. The surroundings are very private and peaceful. We love how quiet it is here and we have felt very spoilt."

The first baby to be delivered in the new, midwife-led birthing centre was 7lb 8oz Paig. She arrived in one of the birthing pools at 2.18am.

Her mother, from Finchley Central, said: "No birth can ever be described as easy, but it was quite quick and straightforward. The unit is very quiet and peaceful and overall it was a good experience."

The last baby to be born at Chase Farm Hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, was Amelie Williams-Gracia, who was delivered last Tuesday.

Her mother, Valeria Gracia, said: "The experience was amazing. We've been so well looked after under difficult circumstances for the staff."

Amelie's father Justin Williams added: "It's nice that I was also born here 42 years ago."

Questions raised over Tory MP Burrowes' 'commitment'

ENFIELD Southgate MP David Burrowes has come under fire from health campaigners over a "planted question" about Chase Farm Hospital in the House of Commons last week.

Monty Meth, life president of the Enfield Over-50s Forum, and Alev Cazimoglu, chairwoman of Enfield Council's health and wellbeing panel, questioned the MP's past commitment to Chase Farm after he asked Prime Minister David Cameron whether there would be an increase in spending on primary care in Enfield following the downgrade of the hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield.

Mr Burrowes, who posed the question during Prime Minister's Questions last Wednesday, also asked whether the hospital would provide 24/7 access to urgent care.

In his response, Mr Cameron praised the MP for "working hard on this difficult issue for his constituents", before adding: "Chase Farm Hospital will provide a service giving access to GPs 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

"Enfield is also getting an increase in primary care funding. That is part of our plan of not cutting but expanding our NHS."

Both the question and reply were criticised by Mr Meth and Ms Cazimoglu because Mr Burrowes had opposed Enfield Council's attempt to seek a judicial review of the downgrade of the hospital.

Mr Meth said: "Mr Burrowes wanted to cover his tracks for failing to support the council in going for a judicial review and for failing to support Nick de Bois (Enfield North MP) in this.

"And the Prime Minister was economical with the truth. Patients will only be able to access the out-of-hours service at Chase Farm if they are referred via the 111 number. "Trying to pretend this is an A&E by another name is misleading."

The Enfield Clinical Commissioning Group said that the out-of-hours service was staffed "by at least one GP" seven nights a week.

Ms Cazimoglu added: "It was a planted question and a ridiculous answer. Mr Burrowes has never fought for the hospital and he should not pretend otherwise."

The Conservative MP hit back by saying the ultimate decision to downgrade Chase Farm was taken by GPs.

"The decision was taken by doctors," he said. "When they said 'yes' and investments were made at North Mid, that changed the position."

"There is a time and a place for protest, but since 2007 a lot has happened. We need to get as much funding as possible for local health services. We have secured some of that and we need more."

NHS England was unable to confirm whether primary care services in Enfield would receive additional funding by the time the Advertiser went to press.

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

Police commended

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE unit of police officers responsible for clamping down on gang crime, the detective who pioneered a "life-saving" domestic violence initiative and two officers who battled to save a man's life have all been honoured for their work.

The dedicated squad of officers and detectives charged with ending gang warfare in the borough were commended for their "outstanding professionalism and continued dedication in reducing gang violence" during the Borough Commander's Commendation Ceremony in the Dugdale Centre in London Road, Enfield Town, on Monday.

When the commendations were awarded, particular mention was made of the unit's work in bringing the killers of teenager Negus McClean to justice in May.

Negus was stabbed to death by a members of a rival gang, who attacked him and his younger brother in Westminster Road, Edmonton, in April 2011.

Also honoured by borough commander Jane

Johnson was Detective Sergeant Adam Rowland, who was commended for his work spearheading the TecSOS scheme, where women at risk of domestic violence are given an alarm that is disguised as an ordinary mobile phone.

Speaking to the Advertiser after the ceremony, DS Rowland said that thanks to the success of the scheme in Enfield, the project was due to be rolled out nationwide in the new year.

The heroics of PC Mark O'Neil and PC Martin Burkert were also commended.

The invited audience at the ceremony heard how the two men battled for 20 minutes on April 1 to save the life of Mohammed Hussein, who died from a single bullet wound to the chest on a housing estate in Bounces Road, Edmonton.

They were honoured for their "professionalism and diligence at the scene of a fatal shooting leading to vital evidence being secured and preserved."

Commending all the officers who had been recognised at the ceremony, Chief Superintendent Johnson said: "Enfield is a very challenging environment and all our officers step up to the plate on a daily basis."

Not playing ball: The travellers were fighting action to evict them from the car park

Travellers move in

TRAVELLERS have set up camp in the car park of a football stadium – and at the time of going to press were refusing to move on.

According to Enfield Town Football Club match secretary Keith Wortley, a number of caravans appeared in the car park alongside Enfield Playing Fields, yesterday morning.

Although the travellers were engaged in a stand-off with police and council officers, who were seeking to evict them from the site, Mr Wortley insisted that Enfield Town's Isthmian League Cup match with Harlow

Town last night would go ahead as planned.

An Enfield Council spokesman confirmed that the authority was trying to evict the travellers from the site.

There is no official provision for travellers anywhere in the borough.

Cleaners continue fight over planned hours cut

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE union representing cleaners at the College of Haringey, Enfield and North East London is keeping up the fight over proposed cuts to their working hours.

Representatives from the GMB union picketed a meeting of the governing board at the college's site in Hertford Road, Enfield, on Thursday, and announced they would hold a further protest at the college's main campus in High Road, Tottenham, this morning.

Under current proposals, around 60 cleaners will see their contracts cut from 51 weeks a year to 39 from January, translating into a 23 per cent pay cut for the lowest-paid workers.

The protests come after talks between the college, the GMB and Ocean, the contractor which employs the staff, broke down on November 15.

"The college and Ocean are showing their contempt for this group of workers and continue to refuse to talk to them directly about terms and conditions," said Steve Sweeney, the union's regional organiser.

"The college is located in some of the most deprived boroughs in the country and the college should be paying the London living wage, as opposed to the minimum wage and cutting hours."

The college said that the new rotas were a necessity as it faced a budget cut of £3.17million and sought to reduce expenditure without affecting teaching.

It also said a new meeting with the union was being arranged.

A spokeswoman added: "The college does believe that the London living wage should be paid and as contracts are renewed companies will be invited to submit tenders on this basis."

Mr Sweeney said Tottenham MP David Lammy backed the campaign and would be attending today's protest.

'Granddaughter' hacks man's bank account

A VICTIM of identity fraud hopes that his misfortune will inspire other people to be more vigilant.

The retired Enfield resident discovered that he and his wife had been victims of identity fraud when their bank called to ask about unusual account activity last month.

The man, who wished to remain anonymous, said: "The bank told us whoever this person was, they managed to pass all the security questions.

"The only way this would have been possible was if they'd taken our post.

"My first thought was that someone in the postal office was responsible."

After talking with his postman, the man found someone had been posing as his granddaughter for two weeks.

He said: "My postman told me he'd been giving the post to my 'grand-daughter' every morning, while she sat on my doorstep with a cigarette. She told the postman that she wasn't allowed to smoke in the house and that she would take the letters inside afterwards.

"I was in utter shock. She used such a believable back story. People need to know this is happening.

"She might not only be targeting Enfield, so everyone should be aware of this and be extra vigilant."

The suspect requested a new debit card from the bank, tried to spend £8,000 in a central London department store and withdrew £300 in cash from an ATM machine.

Enfield Police received a report of a similar crime committed at Queen Anne's Grove in Bush Hill Park, on November 9. In that case, no access to the victim's bank account was gained.

A Metropolitan Police spokesperson said: "Enfield Police are investigating two similar incidents of mail theft. At this stage the two reports are not being treated as linked."

Academy hopes to build new primary on its site

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

PROPOSALS for a new primary school could be the answer to parents' prayers in the west of the borough.

Ashmole Academy, in Cecil Road, Southgate, has announced that it is considering creating a new primary school on its site.

As local authorities have been barred by the government from building new schools, the proposed primary will be set up and run outside local authority control by the academy itself.

Although the proposed site is in the borough of Barnet, the governors are considering making the Fox Lane area in Southgate a priority location for any new intake.

With many parents and children in the area left without a local school place, an influential parent-power lobby group has admitted it is thrilled at the prospect of the new primary.

Gonul Daniels, a member of the South West Enfield Action Team, told the Advertiser: "We are delighted.

"Ashmole is an outstanding school and so there is no reason to say we shouldn't go ahead with this. The school has got a great reputation at the upper level, which I am sure would be carried on with a primary school."

The proposals would see a reception class and a Year 1 class opened in 2015.

However, before any further action can be taken, Ashmole needs to raise sufficient funds to establish the new school as well as definitively demonstrating there is a pressing need for primary places in the area.

'Delighted':

Daniels

The school's website states that Derrick Brown, headteacher of the academy, will oversee the project and is working with Liz Whincop, the former head of Walker Primary School, in Waterfall Road, Southgate, to develop the proposal.

Residents of the Grovelands area in Southgate, who have been vocal in their opposition to mooted proposals for a school expansion project in Grovelands Park, are also backing the bid.

Wendy Boast, a member of the Grovelands Residents' Association, who lives in Queen Elizabeth's Drive, which backs on to the park, said: "The residents' association are supportive of the proposal because it means it will save the area of concern in Grovelands Park from development.

"Grovelands Residents' Association does support the need for local primary places and we have always been hopeful of somewhere other than the Grovelands site being found."

COMMENT

Bottom line: more funding is needed

AFTER years of campaigning by health activists over the lack of public health and primary care funding in Enfield, it has been revealed that mental health services in the borough are also at breaking point.

Economic conditions have led to an increase in the number of people with mental health problems, but funding does not match demand.

Last year a major report published by the London School of Economics found that mental health problems account for nearly 40 per cent of all illness, but only 13 per cent of NHS funds are devoted to their treatment.

While the Enfield Clinical Commissioning Group and the Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Mental Health Trust provided us with different figures to suit their own agendas, it is clear that the level in funding in Enfield is even lower. To avoid a major crisis, the government should fund this vital service properly.

Vast insight in pupils' questions

AT the moment, popular opinion dictates that young people are so politically disengaged that most 18-year-olds care for little apart from taking selfies and lounging in onesies.

However, this week the young people of Enfield showed that not only do they care about what goes on in the world around them, but also that often they have more perceptive and insightful questions to ask than their elders.

At St Anne's High School, the self-assured young women refused to be dismissed as airheads who rely on their "wiles" rather than their brains.

And the children of the Alma Estate brought council chiefs up short with their reminders that behind their grand schemes to relocate and rehouse hundreds of people lie children who dread the day when they will have to up sticks and move far from friends on the orders of a swipe of a council officer's pen.

Statistics show that A&E should remain open

AS a member of the City Hall health committee, I believe it is important to add to the headlines that were covered from our recent report on London's accident and emergency services for the forthcoming winter.

We not only face a winter NHS crisis, but also we have already had an unprecedented summer crisis, too.

Barnet and Chase Farm's records show that for 45 out of the last 52 weeks, the A&E target for treatment or admission time was missed.

It should also be remembered that the target was reduced by the Conservative-led government from the 98 per cent target set and met by the Labour government which it inherited, to just 95 per cent.

And it is not even meeting that, with just 91 per cent of patients being dealt with in time at Barnet and Chase Farm.

It is true the coalition is making more funds available in a late effort to head off the inevitable winter crisis, but as Dame Ruth Carnall, Mayor Boris Johnson's health adviser and former head of the NHS in London, admitted to our committee, this is no more than a "sticking plaster" solution.

With such pressures on A&Es locally, surely the decision to close Chase Farm's emergency department (another broken Conservative promise) next month must be reconsidered?

Thanks for your support

I WOULD like to thank publicly the many business sponsors, supporters and players who helped make the fundraising golf tournament in aid of my new charity, Skills for Life: Making A Difference, such a success.

Particularly, I would like to thank all those who sponsored the match and donated prizes for the grand raffle and lots for the auction held at the evening presentation dinner.

They were Coca-Cola, Tottenham Hotspur FC, Goldblatts, Plumb Inn (Merchants) Ltd, Ingrams Florists, Chamberlains Sales and Letting Agents, Good Looking Optics, Solutions Euro, Carrington Appliances, Lamis Chemist, Bush Hill Park Golf Club, Robert J Hughes Clothing,

I also want to say a big thank you for their continuing support to our three MPs, Andy Love, Nick de Bois and David Burrowes, Enfield Mayor Chaudhury Anwar and council leader Doug Taylor, and to the golfers who came along to take part in what proved to be an exciting day's golf on a challenging course.

The event raised £4,972 for Skills for Life: Making A Difference, the initiative aimed at getting unemployed young Enfield people into paid employment or training.

Not enough car parking space

A PLANNING application (ref: P13-03212PLA) is going through for the development of 46 flats on the former council car park in Cecil Road.

According to the application, there will be off-street parking for 27 cars.

While a few flats owners will not have a car, it is reasonable to assume a number will have at least two cars, therefore realistically there could be about 60 cars.

Where do the council planners think these extra 30 or so cars will park in what is already a somewhat congested residential area?

With all the new blocks of flats here, it seems Enfield is becoming the town of the car with no consideration for the local environment.

Back schools, don't knock them

I HAVE been reading with interest over the last few months your coverage of the SATs issue at Eversley School.

As the headteacher of a neighbouring school that has worked very closely with Eversley's headteacher and her staff, I just wished to put on record my greatest respect for the professionalism and integrity of the head and the governors of the school, my admiration for her staff who create a fantastic education for their pupils and my wish that those attempting to knock the school would offer their time to undertake constructive support that might help the school reach new heights.

A full investigation has taken place and the results clear the school of any wrongdoing. Let's move on.

It does seem fashionable in some circles to constantly attack our schools and teachers, but I believe in Enfield we are blessed with many outstanding schools – and Eversley is certainly one of them.

Spare a few hours to collect for cancer charity

I AM writing to ask your readers to support our Big Bucket Collection.

It is a national fundraising event run by CLIC Sargent, the UK's leading cancer charity for children and young people and this year we are aiming to raise £200,000.

Next month we have been offered the chance to hold a number of collections across London, including in Enfield and Edmonton, and we are looking for anyone who can spare a few hours to help to get in touch.

We are particularly looking for

New mindset needed over road layouts

I AM surprised GA Musey doubts that 20mph speed limits with many pedestrian crossings and traffic lights removed is a tenable proposition (Letters, Advertiser, November 13).

There is widespread evidence from north-western Europe, and more recently from the US and elsewhere, that it is.

The schemes are called "shared space", where pedestrians, cyclists and motorists have equal priority at any point on the street and pavements are removed.

The safety record of such schemes is phenomenal and – despite the fact children are encouraged to cross the road between traffic at will – there has never to the best of my knowledge been a death in roughly 60 years.

I wasn't proposing we should go quite that far for three reasons – there may be rare places where traffic lights and pedestrian crossing are needed, the Department for Transport advice on "shared space" is to leave pedestrian refuge (pavements) in place and a change to more democratic, pedestrian and cyclist-friendly streets needs to be done over time while we all acquire a new mindset.

Labour Party back on track

Elects executive committee after AGM abandoned over voting eligibility

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

LABOUR Party members in Southgate have elected a new executive committee, six months after its annual meeting was aborted over concerns about the voting eligibility of some members.

In a meeting held at the Southgate Progressive Synagogue, in Chase Road, last Thursday, 167 members of the Enfield Southgate Constituency Labour Party turned out to vote for all 15 positions on the executive committee.

The reconvened AGM was overseen by party officials, including Alan Olive, regional director of the London Labour Party.

This was because the meeting in May was abandoned following concerns over the legitimacy of some members, as well as the number of ballots cast.

The election was deemed void at the time, with chairman Anthony Cleary, who was re-elected on Thursday, deciding to postpone the meeting.

A spokesman for the London Labour Party told the Advertiser: "The region was represented at the meeting following difficulties at the previous AGM. We went along and kept an eye on things and the elections passed without any problems."

Due to the delay, members have not yet selected a prospective parliamentary candidate to oppose Conservative Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes in the 2015 general election.

A candidate is expected to be selected early next year.

Council to address problem of female genital mutilation

By Rykesha Hudson

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A TELEVISION programme about female welfare issues has inspired a new topic of discussion for the borough's Conservative party.

The Cruel Cut was aired on Channel 4 earlier this month and highlighted the growing issue in the UK of the removal or partial removal of the female genitals.

After watching the thought-provoking programme, Enfield councillor Denise Headley, who represents Bush Hill Park ward, said she wanted to know how FGM was affecting women in Enfield.

And she has submitted a motion to the council to discuss this further.

She said: "For me, the programme was so haunting – as a person, as a woman, as a mother – and something needs to be done.

"As a local party member, I am deeply concerned about this and I would like to protect young girls and women from FGM and its long-term health risks."

The motion will be discussed at tonight's full council meeting.

Ms Headley said: "I contacted the Daughters of Eve organisation, which helps victims of FGM in the UK and was responsible for making the programme.

"I hoped they would read through the motion and amend it as they have more in-depth

Motion: Councillor Denise Headley

knowledge and experience with this issue."

Currently, there is no record of how many women and girls have been a victim of FGM in the borough.

Ms Headley said: "I went past a primary school recently and wondered how many of the little girls playing in the playground had suffered.

"There needs to be a collective investigation in maternity wards and sexual health clinics.

"Young girls need to be educated about this," she added, "and the whole community needs to be aware of the dangers and health risks this cruel practice involves."

An online petition to stop FGM is currently the UK's second largest e-petition, attracting more than 85,000 signatures.

Students want more women in politics

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A COLLECTIVE gasp of outrage rippled through the already draughty assembly hall when a former councillor told hundreds of students that women "use their wiles more than men" to get ahead in politics.

John Egan stunned pupils at St Anne's Catholic High School, in Oakthorpe Road, Palmers Green, when he spoke to them as a member of a panel of politicians gathered as part of a mock question time event to discuss women in politics.

He was responding to one of the students who had asked the panel: "Do women have to be more ruthless than men to get ahead in politics?"

On hearing this, 16-year-old Candy Asumadu's hand shot into the air.

"Don't you think it's this kind of attitude that discourages women from becoming MPs and going to the top of their professions?" she asked.

Mr Egan, a governor at the school, insisted it was "a facetious remark" but prompted ripples of angry mutterings when he added: "Women do have different ways of achieving things."

Speaking after the event, Candy said she felt she had to challenge the former Tory councillor as: "It was clearly the way he thought about women, and he's not the first one to say that. He kind of reflected what men's opinions often are of women."

"It makes me angry because attitudes like that discourage women from putting themselves forward in life."

The responses of other leading political figures in the borough were met with a warmer reception, however, and former Enfield mayor Kate Anolue's impassioned call to arms won rapturous applause.

"What does a man know about what kind of sanitary towel I should use?" the Upper Edmonton ward councillor asked indignantly. "What does a man know about the pain of labour? Let us not sit down and think that politics is for men only."

Speaking to the Advertiser at the end of the session, head girl Haille McFarlane, 16, and Tara Mabena, also 16, pictured inset, were united in their calls for more to be done to engage young women in politics as, they pointed out, not being represented at the top level of politics fed into all areas of public life.

Tara said: "In music videos, for example, women are dehumanised. They are not really seen as human beings, they are more like objects than people."

Haille added: "The media and music videos have a role to play in how women are viewed. You open a newspaper and there is a picture of a naked woman on the first page you see."

And she insisted: "Women have fought so hard to have a vote and we need to have more of a voice."

Judge dismisses race discrimination claim

'Lack of merit' in complaint against school, electrician told

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN electrician has lost his case against the school that employs him after a judge dismissed his claims of racial discrimination.

Phil Dominique, who works at Broomfield School, in Wilmer Way, Southgate, had brought a claim against his employer, claiming that he had been prevented from carrying out some of his duties between February and May this year because he was discriminated against on the basis of his race.

However, the school maintained that Mr Dominique had been asked to refrain from carrying out some of his duties as senior management needed to check with the school's insurers that all Mr Dominique's paperwork complied with requirements.

He was retained on the school staff and was able to carry out other general duties while the paperwork was processed.

At an employment tribunal hearing in Watford last Tuesday, Judge Camilla Palmer dismissed Mr Dominique's claims, ruling that there was no credible evidence of discrimination.

Broomfield School, where Mr Dominique is still employed, has applied to recover its £10,000 legal bill from the electrician.

The costs hearing is scheduled for January and, according to a council spokesman, Judge Palmer told the school that its application to recover the money was "not unreasonable" given the "lack of merit" in the claim.

At Mr Dominique's initial hearing at the tribunal court on September 12, a different judge threw out seven of his original nine grounds for complaint as having "no reasonable prospect of success" and warned him that the remaining two grounds had "little reasonable prospect of success".

Mr Dominique was ordered to pay a deposit of £800 before proceeding with his claim.

Seeking to recover its legal costs: Broomfield School hopes to recoup its £10,000 bill from Mr Dominique

Festive fun: Hundreds of people gathered in Southgate to watch Santa Claus turn on the Christmas lights as well as taking the chance to meet some reindeer

Southgate sparkles

AFTER a weekend of celebrations, Christmas has definitely arrived in Southgate.

The high road is now adorned with lights and festive shop displays after two days of fun which included the launch of Santa's Grotto.

On Friday afternoon, schoolkids led carol singing under the Christmas tree in the centre of Southgate Circus, before the official lights switch-on by Santa Claus, who was joined by Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes.

Santa then headed to the heartland of the shopping district to open his grotto at the Southgate Club, in Chase Side.

Saturday's fun included horse and carriage rides as well as reindeer outside Vic Smith Beds, in Dennis Parade, and snow machines on the streets.

Mr Smith, a member of the Southgate Chamber of Trade, said: "There were hundreds of people in the high street. It really brought Southgate together, like the summer festival did."

On December 14, the chamber will host an ice rink in the area.

Education chief hits out

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A COUNCILLOR has launched an impassioned defence of a school's handling of an investigation into Level 6 SATs examinations.

Conservative Daniel Pearce, a ward councillor for Southgate and chairman of governors at West Grove Primary School, in Chase Road, Southgate, submitted a written question before tonight's meeting of the full council at the Civic Centre, in Silver Street, Enfield.

He asked: "Could councillor Orhan answer the following questions regarding Eversley Primary School? Who has been interviewed in the course of her investigations? What forensic examinations have been undertaken of the computer that is supposed to have registered the children on time?"

That prompted a fierce response from Ayfer Orhan, Enfield Council's cabinet member for education, who lashed out at the "self-aggrandisement" of Tory councillors.

She also claimed that the school had been the victim of press persecution.

Mrs Orhan said: "Eversley Primary School is an outstanding school, with exemplary policies, practices and procedures, which has been victimised by the local press and councillors from the opposition party, whose sole motive seems to be self-aggrandisement."

She did not provide Mr Pearce with a breakdown of who had been interviewed in the course of the investigation and did detail the forensic examinations of the computer that had been used to register the Level 6 pupils for the exams.

She referred the councillor to the report which was available on the school's website.

Mr Pearce also asked what steps had been taken to find out where and how copies of the original papers had been obtained.

Mrs Orhan responded: "The report proved conclusively that the school acted entirely in the interests of the children. Not a single complaint against the school from parents, children, local authority officers or any other individual was received."

THE decision to challenge the National Health Service on downgrading Chase Farm Hospital was the right one for the council to take.

It is important for the council to act to defend local people. And while ultimately unsuccessful, if you don't try to support the interests of local people, then you will never succeed in defending them.

What we have now, or rather come December 9, is a hospital without two key services – full maternity and accident and emergency.

With major missed targets for waiting times, particularly at North Middlesex University Hospital, we will now have increased numbers of patients turning up at the A&E and waiting...and waiting.

Without the increase in primary care and community services, which we believe were part of a clear and unequivocal promise, waiting times for GP appointments will rise and queues at A&E at North Middlesex and Barnet hospitals will grow.

Doug Taylor

Leader of Enfield Council

Healthcare will get worse in Enfield.

The council was unanimous in pursuing the judicial review. The risk of losing, despite having a good case, was certainly worth the risk of trying.

Undoubtedly, some will criticise the legal costs incurred, but are they really being apologists for the downgrading?

Without better primary care provision, and with less access to emergency services, I believe that appointments with GPs will only become scarcer.

Currently, it is estimated 30 people a year die in Enfield from cancer because they don't get a diagnosis early. Scarcer GP appointments won't improve that.

I deeply regret that the judge did not support our legal challenge – but the challenge was nothing less than the people of Enfield rightly expect and deserve.

SUDDENLY, everyone is talking about the housing crisis. We have at last noticed that London's housing stock has become an investment opportunity for foreign billionaires, rather than a basic right for ordinary Londoners.

The Conservative Party's Help To Buy policy should really be called Help To Buy To Let.

So far, nobody is talking about how we can change things. And yet British history teaches us that people can organise collectively to fight for affordable housing.

Take World War I – a time of great housing stress. As armaments production increased, more and more workers moved into the overcrowded industrial areas.

Landlords took advantage by jacking up the rents. Then resistance began. Tenants in Glasgow went on rent strike, building barricades round the flats to keep the bailiffs out.

During 1915, the rent strike movement spread all over Britain. In Edmonton, an important arms-producing area, there were three successive rent strikes, involving thousands of tenants.

All this militant action forced the wartime Liberal government to introduce a rent freeze.

If you're still on the housing waiting list, you can't go on rent strike.

But people have also taken direct action for the right to housing itself. Just after World War II, homeless ex-servicemen and their families organised a mass squatting campaign.

Hundreds of premises, including hotels and luxury flats, were occupied. The police everywhere were brushed aside. The government – Labour this time – was forced to respond to the situation, increasing the supply of pre-fabs – prefabricated dwellings – to replace houses which had been blitzed.

Young people don't need to be told what the current housing crisis means – you grovel to the agent, you agree to give the landlord half your monthly income, or else you camp out on a mate's sofa.

The question is, can we, in today's depoliticised Britain, rediscover the militancy of former generations?

Estate youngsters face fears on regeneration

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

MOVING away from friends and starting up somewhere else, as well as the danger of HGVs trundling through their narrow streets are fears looming large in the minds of children living on the Alma Estate.

With the regeneration of the estate in Ponders End getting closer, the council's cabinet member for housing Ahmet Oyken and senior project manager of strategic housing Peter George this week answered questions from Year 4 and 5 pupils at Alma Primary School about the multi-million-pound project which is scheduled to begin in the new year.

Since the plans were first mooted two years ago, concerns have been rife that residents would be forced into smaller homes and might lose secure tenancies.

However, as the questions and answers from the youngsters proved, proposals which will see four landmark towers demolished have left the children with their own concerns.

One of the pupils who feared he would have to move schools if his parents decide to leave the estate asked whether transport would be provided so children could keep going to the school, in Alma Road.

Looking slightly uncomfortable, Mr George said that no family was being forced to move off the estate, but admitted that no specific measures would be put in place to ensure that all pupils could stay at the school.

"Some of you have been at this school for a number of years and you can continue going to this school if you continue living on the estate," he told the children, sat cross-legged in a circle around the council duo.

"Ultimately, it is a decision for your parents."

But the fear of having to move away was preoccupying the minds of many children whose families have decided to leave the estate, with one young pupil asking plaintively: "Will our teachers come with us?"

With Mr George and Mr Oyken seemingly struggling for an answer, headteacher Helen Thomas stepped in, explaining patiently: "The simple answer is no."

In a bid to reassure the children that any disruption would be worth it in the long run, Mr George added: "When the regeneration happens, life will be easier for families living on the estate."

"At the minute there are children living in overcrowded conditions who can't do their homework because they are having to share with a sister or a brother."

"With this regeneration, we will be building bigger homes, so you are not all cramped into one small room."

Drug dealers are jailed

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

FOUR men have been put behind bars following a police swoop on drug-dealing gangs in the borough.

The quartet, who were sentenced at Wood Green Crown Court on Thursday afternoon, are the first to be locked up following the police raids earlier this month which resulted in a spate of arrests with 18 people being charged with a total of 77 offences.

Anil Singh, 19, of Leda Avenue, Enfield Wash, was sentenced to 20 months' imprisonment in a young offenders' institution.

He had pleaded guilty at the same court earlier that day to three counts of supplying class A drugs and one count of possession of cannabis.

Kimani Prince, 25, of Fernes Close, Freezywater, was sentenced to 20 months in prison after pleading guilty at an earlier hearing to two counts of supplying a class A drug.

Prosecuting counsel Adrian Flasher referred to Prince's role in the drugs operation as that of a "runner".

However, defence counsel said Prince refuted that he was part of the Get Money Gang who, police say, control drug-dealing operations in the area.

Kamal Joseph, 18, of Silver Street, Edmonton, was sentenced to 20 months' detention in a young offenders' institute after pleading guilty at an earlier hearing to three counts of supplying class A drugs.

Siaka Dibba, of Southend-on-Sea, Essex, was jailed for 28 months after pleading guilty at a hearing that morning to two counts of being concerned in the supply of class A drugs and one count of possession of cannabis.

Two held in connection with stabbing outside restaurant

POLICE are investigating a stabbing outside a fast food restaurant in Enfield in the early hours of yesterday morning.

Officers were called at 2.45am to the McDonald's at Enfield Retail Park, in Dearsley Road, where they discovered an 18-year-old man with multiple stab wounds to his back and arms.

Paramedics took him to an east London hospital, where his condition was said to be serious but stable as we went to press.

A 21-year-old woman was arrested at the scene on suspicion of grievous bodily harm.

A 22-year-old man was arrested later at an address in Waltham Cross suspected of grievous bodily harm with intent to supply class A and B drugs.

At the time of going to press both were still in police custody.

Work up a sweat to help typhoon survivors

By Rykesha Hudson

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A FITNESS instructor is hosting a super-exercise class this weekend to raise funds for those affected by the deadly typhoon that devastated The Philippines.

Mum-of-three Yvonne John, 46, is organising the zumba and bokwa event, Dance for Philippines, in the wake of the disaster which hit the country in south-east Asia almost three weeks ago.

It will take place from 1.30pm on Sunday.

Mrs John, of Broadoak Avenue, Enfield, said: "I really wanted to help and I wanted to find a way for the community to get together.

"When somebody is in desperate need of something, they need it straightaway, not a month later, so I have organised this as quickly as possible."

The zumba and bokwa class will be held in Heritage House, in Southbury Road, Enfield.

The venue is being donated by supermarket chain Asda and a portable stage has been borrowed from a school.

Nine volunteer instructors, including Yvonne, will teach the two-hour class.

"I wanted to do more than giving a £10 donation or a bake sale," she added.

"Zumba is really enjoyable and doesn't feel like exercise. Those who attend can expect a fun, fun party atmosphere.

"Get ready to work up and sweat and be sure to bring plenty of water."

Yvonne has been teaching zumba for two years at two other venues in Enfield Wash – Albany Leisure Centre, in Hertford Road, and St Helier Community Hall, in Eastfield Road.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Project's goal to celebrate football through the ages

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

By Hannah Crouch

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

FOOTBALL memorabilia, memory cards and a DVD have been produced as part of an intergenerational learning project in conjunction with Enfield Town FC.

The Beth Johnson Foundation, the football club, Enfield Age UK, Kingsmead School, George Spicer School and volunteers took part in the Lottery-funded Enfield Football Tales celebration project.

Those involved have been invited to view the final pieces tomorrow, including a specially made DVD which features interviews from 1955 right up to the present day.

Suzannah Yianni, project co-ordinator at the Beth Johnson Foundation and Age UK Enfield, said: "Some people respond better when they are able to actually hold something, so we have numerous items, including old football boots from the 1950s, that people can look at and compare with more modern designs.

"For older people, this can help to trigger memories and conversation, evoking powerful emotions and feelings which can help to create a discussion between the generations."

Other pieces on show at the Queen Elizabeth Stadium, in Donkey Lane, where Enfield Town play their home games, will be boxes containing items associated with football for people to handle for discussion purposes, as well as double-sided memory cards filled out by volunteers, depicting their memories of sport as a conversation starter.

One of the main aims behind the project was to build on and strengthen relationships between generations in the community.

Ms Yianni added: "It is about breaking down the social and cultural barriers in Enfield across the generations.

"Research has shown that young people enjoy

If the boot fits: Those involved in the Enfield Football Tales Celebration have been invited to view items included in the project at Enfield Town Football Club interacting with older people and it can help stop them from feeling isolated within their own community."

While the project is only on show to those who have taken part in it, the pieces are to be handed over to schools, community groups and organisations to use.

If the pieces prove to be popular, there could be an opportunity for them to go on display to the public.

Creative puppets are so naughty... and nice

By Kim Inam
kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

IT began more slowly than expected, but Avenue Q lived up to the hype of being a hilariously naughty puppet show on stage.

A puppet sex scene could probably have scarred me for life, but thankfully other human sexual activity was being played out and I could avert my eyes. Who knew puppets could be so creative?!

The TNT production doesn't start off at that level. It begins much more as if it were an episode of Sesame Street, complete with a lesson about the meaning of the word "purpose" illustrated through 1980s-style graphics on TV screens at the side of the stage.

It wasn't until song number four, If You Were Gay, that the audience began to laugh out loud, quickly followed by Everyone's a Little Bit Racist – and by the time The Internet Is For Porn was shouted out tears were rolling down our cheeks.

Last Thursday evening's performance was not helped by some technical difficulties, which meant that lines of dialogue and song were lost – and even sitting in the third row the actors' voices failed to carry.

Also annoying were the television screens at the side of the stage, which occasionally came to life, and although they were meant to complement the action, it was more of a distraction as you couldn't see the actors' reactions to the screens simultaneously.

Although the lead players of Kate Monster (Laura Bacon) and Princeton (Robert Hearn) sustained an American accent the majority of the time, they were let down by the inconsistencies of the supporting cast members.

In fairness, however, you still leave the auditorium humming happily along to the finale song – and having the opportunity to see such a big-name show in Enfield Town is too good a chance to be missed.

Check Avenue Q out at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, until Saturday evening. Tickets cost £15 and are available from 020 8807 6680 or www.dugdalecentre.co.uk

ADVERTORIAL
Well, here it is again, Christmas
It comes around every year and it always seems to creep up on us and take us by surprise.
At what stage does the panic start to take hold?
How do we avoid the run of the mill, boring stuff that we are so often forced to settle for? It would be great to be able to find something quite original and not readily available in any high street shop or catalogue.
PROBLEM SOLVED!
This Sunday 1st December at the Wyllyotts Theatre Darkes Lane Potters Bar is Pennyfarthing Fayres Christmas Antiques and Collectors Fair.
With around 70 stands offering a huge range of quality items, at prices to suit all pockets; it makes perfect sense to check it out.
Sean and Maureen Carson who have organised the fair for 22 years offer a combination of quality, integrity and value at what is most certainly a very friendly event. The fair is well signposted and on arrival, not only is parking free, but access is easy for all including wheelchairs.
Admission is £2.00 Adults and £1.50 seniors.
The café boasts its own chef and catering staff offering everything from a "Full English Breakfast" to a Sunday roast.
A very popular bonus is a free complimentary glass of Sherry to visitors who arrive at Lunchtime, until supplies run out.
Go on give it a try, we think you will be glad you did!

LAST FEW HOMES REMAIN AT GATEKEEPER MEADOW

Release Time: Immediate

HOMEBUYERS wishing to buy a new home at the popular Gatekeeper Meadow development in Watton at Stone will have to move quickly. Having launched last year, Barratt Homes now only has six properties remaining for sale and are expecting the last few homes available to be a popular choice with families.

Launched in January 2012, and named by local school girl Catherine New, Gatekeeper Meadow is a community of 111 family homes located on the outskirts of the historic village of Watton at Stone. The development is surrounded by open farmland and is just a few minutes' walk to both the village centre and Watton at Stone train station. Barratt Homes believes it is a combination of the development's rural location and well-proportioned properties that has fuelled its success.

Karly Williams, Head of Sales at Barratt Homes North London, commented: "During the planning phase of this development we consulted local people to ensure that the homes we delivered at Gatekeeper Meadow would meet local demand. With a small number of homes remaining this has definitely been the case. Our team has worked really hard to provide a new neighbourhood of quality housing in Hertfordshire and I would encourage homebuyers looking for a distinctive new home in the area, to get in touch before it's too late."

The properties at Gatekeeper Meadow have been carefully designed to fit into their surroundings. Of the six remaining properties, the three bedroom Barwick house types offer two double bedrooms and a further single, with en suite facilities, a family bathroom and storage on the first floor. Downstairs the living/dining space with French doors to a private rear garden, is complemented by a separate kitchen and cloakrooms off the main entrance hall way. The homes also offer designated parking spaces or a carport; prices start at £313,500.

Elsewhere the four bedroom Fawley house type offers townhouse style living in this picturesque village setting. The ground floor comprises a dining/family room with a kitchen located in the centre of the property. Off the main entrance hallway, the cloakroom and storage space are complemented by a fourth bedroom/study. The first floor comprises a lounge and the master bedroom en suite. While on the top floor two further double bedrooms and a family bathroom ensure the Fawley house offers versatile family living. Prices start at £384,950.

Gatekeeper Meadow benefits a great location just five minutes' walk from Watton at Stone train station. The station offers direct trains to London Moorgate in less than 50 minutes. The picturesque Hertfordshire village also offers great road links; situated just nine minutes' drive from both the A1M and the A10, linking residents to Stevenage, Cambridge, London and beyond.

"The location of these homes was of course a reason for them being so popular," Karly continues. "This part of Hertfordshire enjoys village charm and the convenience of being close to road networks as well as the amenities of a number of towns and our Capital. These homes definitely exploit their location."

For further details on the remaining homes in Gatekeeper Meadow or other homes in Hertfordshire please call 01920 830309, visit www.barratthomes.co.uk/GatekeeperMeadow or www.lanesnewhomes.co.uk

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

- Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1989.
- 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.
- To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business, either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', 'T' etc. in the advertisement.
- The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

- (a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
- (b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
- (c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.

- The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.
- Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.
- The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.
- Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republishing or allowances.
- All gross advertising rates (except classified line and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.
- All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.
- Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.
- The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.
- Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.
- All accounts must be settled within the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.
- The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.
- The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belongs to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.
- Box Numbers
Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No. centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies. Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.
- Holiday & Travel Category
All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.
- Data Protection
The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors.
Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes.
Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of adult services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.

Ready for winter?

Up until recently this small section of pipe was concealed behind the bathroom wall of a fifth floor flat. Unfortunately the tiny hole in the middle of the corroded area was letting out a very fine but constant spray of water that continued for some time before the leak (and damage!) was spotted and the pipe could be replaced.

This reminded me of the increased risk of water damage at this time of year. So as the weather gets colder, here are a few things to check in your property:

- Pipes and tanks – Are they well insulated and lagged?
- Boiler – is it working efficiently and has it been serviced in the last 12 months?
- Going away for Christmas? – If your property is going to be vacant then leave the heating on at a low temperature to reduce the risk of pipes freezing.

There's also an increased risk of fire as we all try to stay warm and cosy inside:

- Chimneys – Make sure they're swept once a year, ideally before you light a fire!
- Smoke alarms – Test your alarms now as open fires, candles and fairy lights all add to the risk.

If your property is tenanted make sure your tenant is aware of the risks and how to avoid them. While the chances of the worst happening are slim it's always worth making these few extra checks and double checking your insurance!

BMW plugging into the electric market

By Iain Dooley

THE i3 is a big deal, not just for BMW but also for the electric car industry. Boasting an innovative approach to design, construction and its underlying technology, this could be the car to give the electric car market the shot in the arm it needs to make the move from niche to mainstream status.

So far, early adopters have helped drive interest in electric transport. BMW is keen to tap into this buyer demographic – witness the i3's futuristic looks and the makers' efforts at community building with a comprehensive smartphone app that can remotely monitor your pride and joy.

The bottom line is a carbon composite shell wrapped in funky-looking panels and room for four inside the radically styled – by current standards – cabin. Wood trim blends well with the exposed composite shell and the liberal use of natural fibres for door panels and the top of the fascia. Still, all this window dressing would be for naught if the i3 failed to deliver the goods in reality. Thankfully, the electric BMW offers possibly the most rounded driving and ownership experience to date, granted that progress is rapid in the electric car sector.

BMW has retained its trademark rear-wheel drive layout for the i3. At a whisker under four metres, it is compact and this is reflected in its agility around town and its black cab-rivalling turning circle. The i3's narrow section tyres also play a part and contribute towards the car's slippery aerodynamic properties.

With a clean-sheet approach to design comes the ability to place the batteries, a 230kg slab of lithium-ion power, under the flat floor. This ensures maximum occupant space in the cabin, a decent-sized boot and a positive effect on handling. The 170-horsepower electric motor also plays a significant part in overall performance.

And you can't talk about batteries without covering the practicalities of range. BMW have conducted detailed research to observe driver behaviour.

As you'd expect, the mainly urban journeys were frequent and short and, with that in mind, a real world range of around 100 miles isn't bad.

Although different eco-centric driving modes can be selected to maximise driving range, the i3's in-built brake regeneration properties can return a meaningful amount of charge to the battery during a journey.

You need to lay off the brake pedal because simply easing off the throttle at urban speeds is enough to bring the i3 to a steady yet prompt halt – and while that's happening, the battery is getting a small but useful top-up.

Conversely, lean hard on the throttle and you can experience a 1 Series diesel level of brisk acceleration.

The ability to drive almost exclusively using just one pedal aside, the i3 is surprisingly conventional. Largely familiar controls, a lofty driving position, good visibility and a high level of refinement go a long way to justifying the premium price tag and ensuring a place within the BMW family.

Of course, the financial aspects should also be appealing. The absence of road tax and fuel liabilities rank high alongside the ability to charge the car for very little – overnight via a domestic electricity supply and a matter of hours when connected to a high output wall box or public recharging point.

The i3 isn't a cheap proposition, but it's a compelling one for savvy early adopters keen to make a statement and exploit the car's considerable on-road talents. While electric cars are still viewed as a gamble by many, BMW's approach with the i3 could pave the way for wider acceptance.

Facts at a glance

■ Model: BMW i3, from £25,680 on the road, including £5,000 government grant.

■ Engine: Electric motor developing 170bhp.

■ Transmission: Single speed transmission as standard, driving the rear wheels.

■ Performance: Maximum speed 93mph, 0-62mph 7.2 seconds.

■ Economy: Approximate range of 80-100 miles per charge.

■ CO2 Rating: 0g/km.

LONDON BOROUGH OF ENFIELD
Licence Variation
NOTICE IS GIVEN that Jay Harrie of
Royal Caribbean Cuisine, 42-44
Sterling Way, Edmonton, London N18
2XZ has made an application to the London Borough of Enfield to vary the following licensable activities/conditions:
Proposed variation(s) to extend business hours to 2am on Fridays &
Saturdays.
Persons living or involved in a business in the vicinity of the premises or bodies representing them who wish to make a representation against the application, must do so by specifying the grounds of their representation in writing to the Head of Trading Standards & Licensing, PO
Box 57, Civic Centre, Silver Street,
Enfield EN1 3XH within twenty eight days from the date of this Notice.
Petitions shall state on each page the grounds for representation and notice to signatories that the petition will be copied to the applicant. Each page must be dated and signatories must print their full names and address.
On the day after the application is made a completed notice must be exhibited on a conspicuous part of the premises where it can easily be seen and read by persons in the street, 24 hours a day. The Notice must be kept exhibited for not less than 28 consecutive days.
It is an offence to make a false statement in connection with an application and a person guilty of an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level five on the standard scale.
The application is posted on the Council's website www.enfield.gov.uk

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.

2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.

To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.

3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

- (a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
- (b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
- (c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.

4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.

5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.

6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.

7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or replacement.

8. All gross advertising rates (except classified line and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.

9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.

10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.

11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.

12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.

13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.

(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.

(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.

14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect of an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.

15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.

18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Box Numbers

Boxes are used for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies.

Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.

Holiday & Travel Category

All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.

Data Protection

The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies.

However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors.

Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes.

Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of adult services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.

We'll give you the best of both worlds...every week, all week!

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

1. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising - it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

1. The advert content can be easily updated.
2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
3. A massive audience, with all ages now online.
4. Very quick response - you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

The Advertiser series of newspapers is distributed every week and the latest editions can be found on our website at

SORRY SPURS CONCEDE SIX

Worrying times: Tottenham head coach Andre-Villas Boas has admitted that he was ashamed by their display at Manchester City
By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

HEAD coach Andre Villas-Boas has admitted that he was embarrassed and ashamed by Tottenham Hotspur's 6-0 defeat at Manchester City in the Premier League on Sunday.

Tottenham went into the match with the best defensive record in the division, but they endured a nightmare afternoon at the Etihad Stadium – never really recovering from falling behind to a Jesus Navas strike after just 13 seconds.

And Villas-Boas offered no excuses for Spurs' dreadful display which saw them slip to ninth in the table.

"To lose 6-0 is extremely embarrassing," he said. "We have high expectations for the season, and losing to a rival by that scoreline is always difficult.

"A defeat like this tends to stick more to your career than the good things you achieve. Our game plan, our confidence and motivation was affected after we conceded a goal in 13 seconds. It is a bad moment. We have to be ashamed of the result.

"We had a very, very good reaction to the first goal we conceded, and that's probably the only positive of the game that we have.

"Everything went badly for us. From being one of the best defences in the country to conceding six goals, there's not a lot we can say. We can say that City were excellent, but we were extremely poor and we paid a heavy price."

Despite the heavy defeat, Spurs are still only four points adrift of second-placed Liverpool, and Villas-Boas insists that there is still a lot to play for.

"The only astonishing thing in this league is that surprising results can happen," he said. "City are on four defeats, we are on four defeats at such an early stage in the season.

"The December and January results will be vital in how the league will finish. At the moment you can be third or ninth. That is the reality."

Villas-Boas added: "The good thing is that, in the Premier League or in a top club, there's always another game coming and another possibility to bounce back.

"We have a game on Thursday where we have to show that we are present, we are there and to continue to do our job. We have to see now the mistakes we made and reflect a little bit.

"We've created so many chances before, and it's an ongoing conversation that we have to make sure we finish up the chances. The team is capable of creating – it's not finishing which is the situation right now."

Vertonghen: A good time to face United

JAN VERTONGHEN insists that Sunday's showdown at home to reigning champions Manchester United is the perfect fixture for Tottenham Hotspur to have as they look to bounce back from their humiliating defeat against Manchester City.

Spurs have failed to score in their last three Premier League matches, picking up just one point in the process, and have a miserable record against United at White Hart Lane – having not beaten them at home since 2001.

However, far from being daunted by the fixture, Vertonghen actually believes that the match could not have come at a better time for faltering Tottenham as they seek to transform their fortunes.

"It's a good thing we play Manchester United next," he said. "We are at home and we have the support of our crowd. I am sure we can win that game.

"The Manchester City result is not a big problem. Of course we didn't play well against City, but we are better than that. We can solve the problem. We will talk and bounce back on Sunday.

"Many of us have had international matches, but we play European games as well, so that was not a problem.

"It is our own fault. Manchester City score a lot of goals at home, but we gave three or four of them away too easily.

"I would just love to have the chance of playing this game again next week, because we are a better team than that."
